

EXECUTIVE COACHING

In times of crisis

FREE Sessions until

1st July 2020

Anxiety, confusion and negativity has accompanied Covid19 in our working world. As a Chief Executive or Senior Manager drastic measures have had to be imposed on individuals and organisations, which has caused us to adapt, reflect and think differently within a “business as un-usual” time.

Executive Coaching in times of crisis can support individuals and organizations during Covid19 in:

Making proactive decisions

Leadership, continuous growth and improvement determine success in crisis along with making difficult, yet proactive decisions. Executive Coaching will provide you with tools proven to effectively overcome these challenges with a new perspective in your leadership role.

Re-framing Situations

Empowered to act and learn by seeing the current situation from a different perspective is the only way forward.

Building Resilience

After a major disruption like Covid19, a resilient leader spearheads a stronger bounce back. Executive Coaching can support you in how to achieve this, providing a framework of resilience with a positive outlook.

Well-being

Executive Coaching helps to improve wellbeing looking at specific actions or making changes to one’s lifestyle to become healthier, happier and more confident.

How to access Executive Coaching?

Our pool of experienced executive coaches provide 1-hour bookable slots through either online conferencing or telephone support. All coaches have experience of working with executives in public sector organisations and are here to support you when you need it most.

As a Senior leader from our West Midlands Employers Member organization, get your FREE session on or before the 1st July 2020.
